

She may only be standing tall at a height of 4'11, but she has much more to offer than what meets the eye. From a young age, Emily Louise amazed crowds with her powerful, soulful, and natural talent. They were astonished to hear a strong and mature voice come out of such a small girl.

Although her style is constantly evolving, her influences varies from a variety of music genres including soul, R&B, pop, and latest hits with influences from Lady Gaga all the way back to Ella Fitzgerald. However, her New Orleans roots bring her back to jazz and blues. With such a wide voice range, she is constantly expanding her horizons, which allows her to be versatile in the music industry.

Emily Louise started her professional singing journey with the Jimmy Maxwell Orchestra (JMO) starting as a junior in college in the spring of 2015. From there she has worked side by side with Mr. Maxwell, who she credits as being her guiding light when first starting out in the industry. JMO has given her the professional experience that has shaped her in her career thus far. Emily Louise has performed at the New Orleans French Quarter Fest, the Stage Door Canteen at the World War II museum, and countless Mardi Gras balls. She continues to work with him and is getting ready for the upcoming carnival season.

While in college, she was also asked to be the lead singer of a newly formed college-led band:

16 Bucks Band. This band opened her eyes to another type of scene- the college crowd. Due to their increase in popularity and professionalism, local talent agents brought the band to the House of Blues in New Orleans to be a recurring act.

While attending a friend's wedding in the fall of 2017, she stumbled upon another native band from New Orleans - Dat Band. She is thrilled to be working with them and accomplish their goal of "making music for memories."

The last 3 years have been nothing short of exciting and memorable for Emily Louise, and she feels honored with the opportunities she has been given thus far in her career. Thank you for supporting and being on this journey with her! She cannot wait to see what the future has in store, and as Frank Sinatra says, "The best is yet to come!"
